(Ashland, OR— January 2, 2021) — Ashland Creek Press is pleased to announce the forthcoming May 4, 2021, release of Catherine Kelaher's nonfiction book for young and young adult readers: SAVING ANIMALS: A FUTURE ACTIVIST'S GUIDE.

About the book: Whether readers are seven years old or seventeen, SAVING ANIMALS — a lively, interactive, hands-on guide to animal and environmental activism—will show young people of all ages how to make a difference.

This timely book covers all aspects of animal protection—from pets to farm animals to wildlife—as well as how to make the world a better place for animals through vegan outreach, animal advocacy, and volunteerism.

In addition to information on why animal protection is vital for all living beings as well as our planet, this book is filled with the interviews and stories of more than two dozen young activists, ranging in age from seven to twenty-two, all of whom are doing amazing things to help create a kinder world. These young activists show how fun and easy it is to be vegan, what kinds of outreach will best fit any personality style, and offer hope for a better future.

"We may be young, but we're also powerful. People will see us speaking up for animals and will realize that they, too, can make positive changes. Our voices will be heard." —Emma Black (14), Wollongong, Australia

"Kelaher's message is buoyant. Saving Animals is an inspiring compilation of ideas and guidance. Get ready to feel motivated!" — Jo-Anne McArthur, photographer & founder of We Animals Media

About the Author: Catherine Kelaher is the founder of NSW Hen Rescue, an Australian charity that rescues, rehabilitates, and rehomes hens and other animals from factory farms. Both Catherine and NSW Hen Rescue have received awards for animal activism and rescue. Catherine was born and raised in England and studied English literature and creative writing at Kingston Upon Thames University.
